Law school introduces online program

By Rheyanne Weaver

The College of Law has a new online undergraduate degree program for the fall that will provide more legal background for students interested in non-lawyer legal careers.

The Bachelor of Science in Legal Studies is an option for students who want to possibly become paralegals, legal assistants, social workers, entrepreneurs and more, according to Paul Berman, dean of the Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law.

"The law school should be a multi-faceted legal studies center," Berman said.

He said students can learn about legal institutions and discourse of law.
