

Charleston School of Law's Website Gets a Facelift

2009-09-11 12:16:48

Read more at The Charleston Regional Business Journal...

Charleston School of Law launches new, redesigned Web site

The Charleston School of Law has launched a newly redesigned Web site at www.charlestonlaw.edu. The new site went live Tuesday.

"The look and the feel of the Web site was developed to make it a lot more user-friendly, particularly to prospective students," said spokesman Andy Brack.

A new search function and drop down menus were added. From the other end, the Web site switched over to a content management system, which makes it easier for different departments to load and update content, Brack said.

Dean Andy Abrams said, "Our new and improved Web site is the culmination of a tremendous amount of time and effort by a large number of dedicated individuals who have worked over the past year to design, develop and launch a site that is user-friendly, comprehensive and professional."