UM's law school named on 'best value' list

The University of Montana School of Law lands number six on a list of best value law schools in the nation.

The list was compiled by The National Jurist, a magazine that reaches an estimated 100,000 law students.

It appears in the September 2009 issue in an article titled "Best Bang for your buck."

The UM law school was lauded for its $10,000 in state tuition, its bar passage rate of 95% and its 95% employment rate after graduation.

The top five schools on the list were North Carolina Central University, Brigham Young University, the University of Nebraska, Georgia State University and the University of Mississippi.
